

the Chapel in the Fields

The Reverend Kevin Johnson has been appointed as minister of Sinderland Green Methodist Chapel, on the edge of a small hamlet, it occupies a unique position, surrounded by National Trust land and is close to two estates, Dunham and Tatton.

The Chapel has recently undertaken extensive alterations and now encompasses - The Chapel in the Fields - With support from the Methodist Church nationally, the Manchester and Stockport District is making the Chapel the centre of a network of people focused on spirituality and creativity, making connections and sharing stories. The Chapel has been remodelled to provide a purpose built setting for Godly Play - the telling of faith stories in an open way which invites reflection and response and a workshop space in the old vestry and kitchen which will be a place for people to find meaningful activity in making wooden resources. Time spent in the Chapel and the workshop will be time for reflection and discussion, listening and working by hand, sharing and building relationships.

The Chapel is also available for hire as a resource for churches and groups from outside the church to spend time in the Chapel's peaceful setting, taking time for reflection, prayer, creativity worship and training.
